On this day in 1940, the “true” Bugs Bunny was “born.” It was in A Wild Hare that he first emerged from his rabbit hole to ask Elmer Fudd, “What’s up, Doc?” Although variations of the Bugs Bunny character appeared in previous films, this is considered the first fully developed appearance of the character we know today as Bugs Bunny.

July 28 Over the Rainbow Day
Judy Garland’s first commercial recording of the song “Over the Rainbow” took place on this day in 1939. It became her signature song. See how many Judy Garland songs you can list.

July 29 Earn Your Stripes
Today is Global Tiger Day, an international event dedicated to raising awareness about and promoting conservation of wild tigers. Learn about the different tiger species or check out the Tiger Facts slideshow. Have your cake and eat it too when you make this Tiger Cake.

July 30 Paperback Books Day
Although books bound in soft covers were first introduced in 1841 in Leipzig, Germany, the modern paperback revolution dates to the publication of the first Penguin paperback by Sir Allen Lane in London in 1935. The first Penguin paperback was a biography of Percy Bysshe Shelley by Andre Maurois. Are you familiar with book exchanges? For the cost of shipping a book, you could exchange used books for other used books. paperbackswap.com is one website that offers the service.

July 31 World Ranger Day
