

LOUDOUN COUNTY FACTS

Loudoun County was part of the five million acre Northern Neck of Virginia Proprietary granted by King Charles II of England to seven noblemen in 1649. Settling of Loudoun County began between 1725 and 1730. The County is located in the Washington Metropolitan Area, 25 miles northwest of Washington D.C. It encompasses a 520 square mile area that is bordered by the Blue Ridge Mountains on the west and the Potomac River on the northeast. For more than two centuries, agriculture was the dominant way of life and the County had a relatively constant population of about 20,000. That began to change in the early 1960s, when Dulles International Airport was built in the eastern part of the County. Following the construction of the airport, new professional and technical service businesses and residential development have dominated the County's eastern portion. The western portion of the County maintains a rural and historical environment, and is designated to remain primarily rural per the County's land use policies.
